Is Greta Garbo Coming to Pt. Richmond to Live?

OBSERVATIONS
By Lee D. Windrem

(EDITORIAL NOTE: Our observor sent the following communication to Senator Sharkey two years ago, but it was too late in the session to take the matter up.)

To the Honorable the Legislature of the State of California:
Most Potent, Grave and
Reverend Seignors:

I am very much alive to the fact that you are deeply engaged in turning the white light of your giant intellect upon the grave problems which make for the weal or woe of the people of our great state and nothing short of a matter of the greatest pith and moment would justify me in disturbing your deliberations.

There is a matter, however, of the gravest importance which you seem to have thus far ignored or overlooked and which I feel justified in calling to your attention.

It seems that the alarming increase in the destruction of husbands by their wives must not only give pause to every thoughtful husband but must also be of interest to you.

The shooting of husbands by their wives has become so common that husbands are beginning to believe they are in the same class as wild game, such as grasshoppers, and gnats, and moles, and doodelbugs, and lice, and gophers, and jackrabbits, and bedbugs, and other predatory animals, and it seems they are entitled to some protection; otherwise, in a short time there will not be enough husbands lying around to wad a shotgun.

When they meet the husband attempts to put his arm around his wife when, alack and alas, his hand comes in contact with the gun, and before he can make a disconnection, the gun explodes and he shoots himself five or six times. Wrestling matches between husbands and wives under these circumstances should be prohibited by law.

The evidence in these cases shows a startling sameness in motive and action. Husband and wife have a slight difference over some trivial affair, such as a blonde lady, or a failure of friend husband to pay his wife's bridge debts, or some other frivolous matter. The wife takes a gun and goes in search of husband to make up the tiff and caress him—with the gun.

A history of one of these trials bears a striking similarity to all others of a like nature. The sad and sorely bereft widow, carefully dressed in somber black, takes the stand and with a shapely leg exposed to the knee and clad in flesh colored sox—purchased by the deceased husband—relates amid sobs and tears how she was

ANALYSIS OF THE FAMOUS PARR LEASE

5. The Lessee shall have the right to prescribe and collect at such terminal or terminal facilities charges for stevedoring; and for receiving delivering, storing, trans-shipping or otherwise handling or accommodating cargo or freight shipped to, from or through said terminal, or to or from ships at said teminal; and for accommodating ships at said terminal; and for the use of said terminal and terminal facilities by any vessel, or by any person for any purpose whatsoever.

Notice that phrase "by any person for any purpose whatsoever." In other words, if Brother Parr wants to run a picture show or a menagerie or a beauty parlor it's all fixed up O. K. for him. "Nuf said."—Lee D. Windrem.

Big Crowd Enjoys Old Timer's Dinner

An outstanding success—that is the only way in which the Annual Old Timer's Dinner can be described. Once each year at the First Methodist Church is held a dinner and gathering of pioneers who review the events of the past year, and hark back to "the good old days when." And this year was far and away the most successful dinner that has been held.

Under the able guidance of Captain Fred Neville, master of ceremonies, the program went along without a hitch. Many amusing incidents were recalled, and the task of carving a new city out of the terrain here at Point Richmond was ably told by those who were called upon. The late Rev. David Calfee, pioneer minister of the Church, was eulogized for the splendid example he set during his life, and his four sons, Tsar, George, Ross, and Burke all appeared on the program, Tsar talked, George sang fine songs in his brilliant baritone voice, Ross played the violin, and Burke

Legion County Council Picnic

Plans are perfected for the Third Annual American Legion Basket Picnic to be held at Ramona Park, Danville, next Sunday. This picnic which is given for the benefit of the Boy Scout Camp at Long Barn has grown in importance to being one of the biggest County Affairs of the year. The general public is invited. There will be gate prizes and games, and the admission is but 25 cents.

At The Richmond Theatre

Tonight, Friday, June 2, Warner Baxter in "Dangerously Yours" with Miriam Jordan and Herbert Mundin, also "Pick Me Up," comedy. Saturday, June 3, Richard Cromwell in "That's My Boy" with Dorothy Jordan, also "Mickey Race." Sunday and Monday, June 4-5, Stuart Erwin and Alison Skipworth in "He Learned About Women" also Tom Mix in "My Pal the King." Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 6-7-8, 3 big days with E. W. Hammons presenting "Trailing the Killer," Epic of Untamed Wilds, also Bing Crosby in "Sing Bing Sing."

WANTED—Advice From You!

Last week our splendid story, "The May Day Mystery," by Octavus Roy Cohen, came to a close. We have anotner fine continued story coming up, if you want it. In the meantime we are running this week a feature News Letter from Washington; next week we will run a different feature. And we will appreciate your getting in touch with us—Phone Richmond 3456—and letting us know what you prefer, whether a story, a news letter, a page of pictures, or what? We strive to please our subscribers.

Fishing News

If anyone tells you that the fish are not biting, you had better think twice before you believe him. Here's just a few lines on limits caught. Mr. J. W. Freeman caught his limit at the Rod and Gun Club; Richie Smith and his partner caught a 5 and a 6 pound bass at San Pablo Bay near the Standard Oil Pier; Forrest Simoni and B. D. Cook spent Memorial Day fishing at the Big Fur past Monterey and caught the limit on steelheads and rainbows. Limits have been caught at the Big Break, Pt. San Quentin and at Giant. If you haven't caught any, don't blame the fish, blame yourself.

Rumor Afloat Actress Will Build Here

A rumor, the truth of which cannot be vouched for, has reached the office of the Progress to the effect that Greta Garbo, famous screen actress, is considering the construction of a pretentious home in Point Richmond.

If those who form the "underground telegraph" which brings this information to us, thing they are "kidding the ears off us" by such a rumor we would just like to straighten up on our hind legs and bellow forth, in our well-known stentorian tones, to a cynical world: "Well, why not? Pick out any spot on the Pacific Coast, or Atlantic as well, that will match in splendor the magnificent vista which spreads before the eyes of our home-town neighbors. Where will you find the marvelous marine-scape to compare with the panorama that starts across the blue waters of San Francisco Bay in Marvelous Marin, which hovers for a moment on the famous "golden gate," guarded by Alcatraz Island, which discerns the distant skyline of San Francisco in the purplish distant shadows, and coursing over beautiful Yerba Buena and the scenic beauty of the East Bay from the Alameda to the Campanile of the University of California?"

No, folks, it is not beyond the realm of possibility that the time will come, and should not be far distant when plutocrats as well as movie stars may give serious thought to the beauty which may be glimpsed from our shores, and "as many a truth has been spoken in jest" we pass on the rumor to you for what it is worth.

(Editorial Note: One of the rules on this paper is that the foibles of movie star press-agentry shall never dim the fair, front-page of our little paper, but anytime Garbo, or any other star, has the brains to figure Point Richmond as "A Good Place in Which to Live," we'll give them the publicity.)

Now that the circus has come and gone, we can perchance find time to rest and dream of sawdust and jumping clowns, and the haunting music of the caliope.

This Week at the Fox Theatre

Friday and Saturday, June 2-3, "The Barbarian" with Ramon Novarro and Myrna Loy. Sunday and Monday, June 4-4, "Out All Night" with Zasu Pitts and Slim Summerville. Tuesday and Wednesday, June 6-7, "Strictly Personal" with Dorothy Jordan and Ed Quillan, also "Rome Express" with Esther Ralston and Conrad Veidt. Special Boy Scouts Band Both Nights. Thursday and Friday, June 8-9, "Bondage" with Dorothy Jordan and Alexander Kirkland, Also "Mysterious Rider" with Kent Taylor in Zane Grey's novel. EXTRA SPECIAL—THURSDAY NIGHT AT 8:30 P. M. A PUBLIC WEDDING on the Stage. A RICHMOND COUPLE. Be here to wish them luck. Maybe you'll be the lucky one and win a MOVIE CHARACTER DOLL.

Richmond Mannechor Picnic

La Honda Bowl will be the scene of a most enjoyable picnic next Sunday when the Richmond Mannechor holds its Annual Picnic. This organization is one of outstanding merit, and brings honor to Richmond wherever the local boys appear. Acting President Bruno Lantzinger has arranged a variety of games, dancing, and other entertainment which bids fair to outrank the many enjoyable picnics which this organization has given in past years. Everyone is invited to attend. Singer Gebhardt Ridger, 81 Scenic Avenue, is in charge of the ticket sale. Director Anthony Durndorz promises some fine group singing; and such outstanding singers as Mapes, Barda Joe Hirth, Schillert, Weber, Behr, Haas, Bleuler, Klatner, Schneidemann, and all the rest of the Chor will be on hand to show you a good time. Be sure and come.

Former Grand Opera Singer Visits the "Point"

Miss Geneveive Caldera, former grand opera singer, visited the Cairo family on Cottage Avenue, last week. Miss Caldera is well known and consequently, many of her friends here were glad to see her.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Perault and son, "Scottie," have returned from an enjoyable week-end spent at Santa Cruz. They visited Mrs. Schroeder, former Point Richmond resident.

Marcollo Thrills Memorial Throng

"From the lips of one of the youngest soldiers who fought in the World War came a plea today for world peace through disarmament and a better understanding among nations." Thus did the Berkeley Daily Gazette, this week, chronicle the address made by Leo G. Marcollo in the presence of soldiers, sailors and marines of three wars gathered at the graves of departed comrades in Sunset View Cemetery where hundreds gathered at 11:00 a. m. on Memorial Day. Besides the services in Berkeley, there was a parade at Richmond, services at St. Joseph's Cemetery, a bean feed by the Spanish War Veterans at Memorial Hall, and the "Doc" Seawright Memorial Ball Game between American Legion Junior baseball stars at Seawright Field, Nicholl Park.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

Valley Boy Wins Contest

Porterville is proud of Jack Case, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Case, who won second place in the State-wide contest for child violinists, held in San Francisco recently.

Cherimoyas Planted

Several small plantings of avocados were set out in the La Habra Heights district this year, but far less than in the past few years. Several plantings of cherimoyas were put out in the district this spring.

Park Fete For Escalon

Plans are going forward in Escalon for the annual Park Fete scheduled to be held this year on Saturday, July 29. The "home-coming" fiesta is held annually, and brings to the community many former residents of the section.

Gavel Presented To Mayor

A gavel made from a piece of oak wood from the vessel in which Napoleon made his escape from the Isle of Elba, was presented recently to Mayor Sheldon Gilmer of Pacific Grove by the local Chamber of Commerce. The vessel is said to have been wrecked on the Monterey beach.

Tail Lights For Horses

Tail lights for horses, to safeguard both equestrians and motorists on the Roosevelt Coast Highway, near Santa Monica, where night horseback riding is much in vogue, was one remedy suggested recently by Malibu township officials in an effort to straighten out a situation that had become tense along the highway.

Entrance Rules For Park

The touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California reports that motorists may enter Sequoia National Park between the hours of 5 a. m. and 9 p. m. daily and on Saturday nights and nights before holidays until 11 p. m., and may check out from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Navels Exceed Demand

Many cars of navel oranges at Redlands will never be sent to market, because the crop during the past season was greater than the market could absorb at even the low prices paid. The prediction is that there will be a greater demand for Valencias and that growers who have summer oranges will get some money for them.

District Shows Activity

A recent survey of the Antelope Valley district revealed that more than $25,000 was being spent in Pearlblossom in building modernization, residential construction and a varied assortment of improvements. Several home additions, as well as three new business structures were being rushed to completion.

Water Rate Cut Asked

The Visalia City Council was informed recently by Councilman A. C. Williams that he planned to introduce a resolution calling on the State Railroad Commission to reduce the interest return to the California Water Service Company on its investment in the Visalia water system. According to Councilman Williams the company is earning 8 per cent on its money in the local system.

Alfalfa Growers Elect

At the recent annual meeting of the San Fernando Valley Alfalfa Growers' Association, held in Reseda, Arthur Nichols was elected president. Other officers are Beryl Wilson, Frank C. Alvos, Franz Borchard and E. S. Engesett. In order to facilitate the handling of present and future summer crops, members are making an effort to obtain irrigation water credit from the Los Angeles water department.

Rains Welcomed

Spring rains coming late in April and early May were welcomed generally by ranchers and growers in Tulare county, with grain receiving the greatest benefit. In fact, the previous estimate of a 50 per cent harvest was increased by the precipitation, and range feed received a fresh impetus as a result of the late storms, while thrips in citrus groves about the county were retarded by the rain and cool weather. Deciduous growers also were jubilant over the storms. The last week of April saw the opening of irrigation gates into some grain fields, although the greater portion of the grain harvest in the Porterville section depends upon nature.

Shade Trees Set Out

F. H. Ernst, assistant farm adviser for Los Angeles county stated recently that thirty-five thousand shade trees had been distributed to farmers in the Antelope Valley. Seedlings were grown on the high school grounds, and recently three thousand more trees were set out on the grounds to be cared for by the agricultural department of the school. The varieties included: Arizona cypress, Arizona ash, Chinese elm, red maple and the honey and black locust.

Dairymen Encouraged

Dairymen of the Tipton-Tulare district were encouraged upon the receipt of their checks for the month of April, when it was found that for the first time in four years the total amount for that month exceeded the payments for the previous month. Payments for April totaled $159,739.67, compared to $147,554 for the preceding month, and $128,632 for February.

In its report to Governor Rolph recently the American Red Cross, through the organization's Pacific Coast manager, A. L. Schafer, showed that its chapters in California had distributed 275,528 barrels of flour up to April 30, and the report revealed that unless Congress supplied additional wheat to be ground into flour, the supply would be exhausted by June 1. The report showed that, in addition to the above, the organization had distributed 3,534,625 yards of cotton cloth, 117,384 dozen cotton garments, 16,853 dozen sweaters, and 69,543 blankets and comforters. Cotton products are still being distributed through 112 chapters that distributed the flour. Los Angeles chapter distributed the largest amount, 94,129 barrels of flour, 1,317,038 yards of cotton cloth, 32,695 dozen cotton garments, 5424 dozen cotton sweaters, and 12,420 blankets and comforters, according to the report to the Governor.

Less Grain Planted This Year

E. E. Kaufman, federal-State crop reporter, predicts a smaller harvest of wheat and barley for California fields this year. The forecast for the State's major crops follow: The condition of wheat in the State on May 1 was 71 per cent of normal, which compares with 72 per cent a year ago and a ten year average of 81. On the basis of present conditions the prospective crop this year is forecast at approximately 8,316,000 bushels. The prediction for barley as of May 1 was 63 per cent of normal, which compared with 71 per cent a year ago and a five year average of 76 per cent. The cool weather had been reflected in the condition reported for the various types of hay crops on May 1. Alfalfa was estimated to be 80 per cent of normal, grain hay 61, and miscellaneous hay 75 per cent of normal. Citrus groves of Fresno county and south were reported carrying a good blossom, with an 84 per cent crop forecasted for navel oranges and an 82 per cent crop for Valencias. The Bureau predicted a 76 per cent wine grape crop, with an 80 per cent raisin grape yield and a 77 per cent table grape crop.

United States Pledges Aid for Peace and Security—J. P. Morgan Questioned by Senate Committee—Plan to Finance Public Works Program.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

RESPONDING to a demand for a clear statement of the policy of the United States in the matter of peace and disarmament, Norman H. Davis, ambassador-at-large, announced to the disarmament conference in Geneva what seems to many a revolutionary departure from traditional American policies. Apparently it means that the United States has abandoned isolation, neutrality rights and the freedom of the seas. Specifically, Mr. Davis pledged his government never to interfere with international action against a nation that has been satisfactorily identified as an aggressor, and to participate in "effective, automatic and continuous" international supervision designed to make certain that the nations carry out their promises in disarmament.

N. H. Davis

"President Roosevelt's message," he said, "is a clear indication of the fact that the United States will exert full power and influence and accept its just share of responsibility to make the results in disarmament definite, prompt and effective."

After announcing that the United States was willing to consult with the other states in case of a threat to peace, Mr. Davis set forth the American policy in these words:

"Further than that, in the event that the states, in conference, determine that a state has been guilty of a breach of the peace in violation of its international obligations and take measures against the violator, then, if we concur in the judgment rendered as to the responsible and guilty party, we will refrain from any action tending to defeat such collective effort which these states may thus make to restore peace."

Asserting that there must be real accomplishment in the way of disarmament, or a reversion to a race in arming, Mr. Davis proposed drastic arms reduction, and promised that the United States would go as far in this as the other states.

Great Britain, Germany and Italy were highly pleased with Mr. Davis' pronouncement, but France remained dissatisfied, both with the security offered by the United States and with the Davis proposals for armament reduction. The more the French get, the more they demand, and their obstinacy is exceedingly irritating to the other nations. Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour told the conference that France would not reduce her armaments unless a definite system of mutual assistance is created, supplemented by genuine supervision of armaments. The supervision, he said, must especially cover armaments which are manufactured in private factories.

WITH a stately parade down Michigan avenue, speeches by Postmaster General Farley and others and much picturesque ceremony, A Century of Progress, Chicago's World's fair, was formally thrown open to the public, and thousands of men, women and children entered the vast exposition area and marveled at what had been accomplished. By high pressure work, the fair was already virtually completed.

The most thrilling and dramatic part of the proceedings came at nightfall, when through a "hookup" of three astronomical observatories a ray from the star Arcturus was caught by telescopes, transmitted to the exposition grounds and used to put into operation the gorgeous lighting system of the fair. According to the scientists, the ray started from Arcturus just forty years ago, at the time the fair of 1893 opened.

The fact that Chicago has created this exposition during the depression is as impressive as the fair itself.

PEACE in Cuba seems to be a long way off, though the government continues with vigor its efforts to wipe out the revolutionists. And, according to the latter, President Machado is using more than vigor. Operations against the opposition are being directed by Maj. Arsenio Ortiz, Machado's chief military strategist, and he is pursuing the same tactics with which he terrorized Oriente province in 1931. In Santa Clara and Camaguey provinces he has been hanging captured rebels to the trees along the highways and in the towns, and it was reported that he held as hostages the family of Carlos Leyva, who led a rebel raid on Taguasco, threatening to kill them unless Leyva surrendered with fifty followers. Then Ortiz returned to Sancti Spiritus, and it was believed he would pursue the same ruthless methods in that section.

Major Ortiz

NEW YORK state came to the fore in favor of prohibition repeal in a manner that surprised even the ardent wets. The vote was about twelve to one throughout the state, and in New York city it was aprpoximately forty to one. The 150 delegates elected to the convention all are pledged to repeal, and they will meet in Albany on June 27 to execute the will of the people. The Empire state will thus become the sixth to ratify the repeal amendment to the Constitution.

INVESTIGATION of the private banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., greatest of its kind in America, was started by the senate banking committee with J. Pierpont Morgan, senior partner, as chief witness. The proceedings were conducted by Ferdinand Pecora on behalf of the committee and attracted a throng of spectators. John W. Davis, former Democratic Presidential candidate, was there as counsel for Morgan, and the banker was several times relieved from nagging questions of Pecora by the protests of Senators Glass and McAdoo. Most interesting to the public of the facts brought out was that no income tax whatever was paid by Morgan or any of his nineteen partners for 1931 and 1932 and that they paid an aggregate of only $48,000 in 1930. This was because of heavy losses sustained by the firm. Morgan could not recall whether he personally paid any tax in 1930, but counsel for the investigators said he did not. Morgan repeatedly answered "I do not know" to Pecora's queries about a $21,000,000 loss written off his firm's books on January 2, 1931, in addition to other deductions which already had wiped out taxable income.

J. P. Morgan

Finally the banker asked Leonard Keyes, office manager of the firm, to explain the matter.

Keyes said the involved transaction was the inevitable result of a revaluation of assets made necessary by the admission of a new partner, S. Parker Gilbert, on January 2, 1931.

Pecora hammered away with questions, but Keyes, a methodical appearing man who spoke crisply and without hesitation, repeated his account over and over. He testified that the $21,000,000 loss could, as the law then stood, have been deducted from the firm's taxable income in 1931, 1932 or 1933. Three or four million dollars of the $21,000,000, he said, was deducted from profits in 1931—a year in which the partners paid no tax—but none in 1932, when the firm "had loss enough."

On the second day the senators heard about Morgan & Co.'s "preferred list" of friends to whom the firm sold Alleghany Corporation common for $20 a share when the market price was $35. In this list were many well-known names, including William H. Woodin, now secretary of the treasury; Charles Francis Adams, later secretary of the navy; Senator McAdoo, Newton D. Baker, John W. Davis, Gen. John J. Pershing, John J. Raskob, Silas H. Strawn and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Another list revealed included the names of bank officers and directors to whom the Morgan firm had made loans. Some of these loans had been repaid, but many had not, and in the latter category the largest was a little over $6,000,000 to Charles E. Mitchell, former president of the National City bank of New York, whose trial for alleged income tax evasion was going on in New York city.

"That is the start of an inflationary step," Woodin said. "It is being done to inject something into the market. In other words, to keep things moving along."

Woodin said additional purchases would be "entirely dependent upon conditions." The new law authorizes the reserve bank to buy up to $3,000,000,000 of securities.

When the reserve banks buy bonds, cash balances of member banks are increased by equal amounts. The administration hopes that the banks, with these additional funds on hand, will advance them to industry.

WHEN President Roosevelt asked the nations of the world to agree to a tariff truce pending the outcome of the London economic conference, the administration thought it would not be in accord with good faith to assess now the processing taxes on wheat, cotton and perhaps corn and hogs provided for in the farm relief act. But Secretary of Agriculture Wallace thought otherwise, and after a conference with Secretary of State Hull he was permitted to go ahead with this undertaking. Probably there will be protests from Europe and Canada, and then the diplomats must get busy.

Secretary Wallace and George N. Peek, co-administrators of the farm relief act, selected Guy C. Shepard of Evanston as administrator in charge of the packing house products under the act. He will have general charge of trade agreements between packers and between producers and processors relative chiefly to hogs and their products. Mr. Shepard was formerly vice president of the Cudahy Packing company.

To handle the cotton work under the farm act, C. A. Cobb of Atlanta, Ga., was named. He is editor of the Progressive Farmer-Ruralist. Both he and Shepard rank alongside of Prof. M. L. Wilson, appointed administrator some time ago.

Easy-to-Make Smart Accessories

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IN MATTER of adorning, flattering accessories the present fashion program is nothing less than exciting. Did one ever see a more fascinating array of knick-knacks and furbelows made of organdie, pique, linen and other likable washable weaves as add the "touch that tells" to our costumes these days!

The best part of the story is that these intriguing trifles, which carry such an unmistakable air of feminine charm, are so inexpensive they are within the reach of all, and if one can sew even a little, or crochet, one can dress with the aid of these embellishing little fantasies, which are so easily made, to look like "a million" at a cost of nothing.

The new organdie blouses are adorable. The model at the top in the picture is especially attractive, being styled after a unique pattern which stresses a novel high girdle effect done in tucks, together with the fact that it is handmade, giving it an exclusiveness all its own. Why not copy this dainty blouse? In running the tucks be sure to use the best thread. Take infinitely fine stitches for the best results. By the way, it's fashion-wise to wear with your light gray or string-colored suit either a navy or brown organdie blouse.

The capelet centered to the right in the group is a "darling." It also is made of organdie, white of course, for white organdie fixings are so crisp and immaculate they freshen up even the most jaded gown. One of these dainty little fichulike organdie capes ought to be included in every up-to-date wardrobe. They are positively fetching worn with flowery chiffons or over pastel crepe frocks. The cunningest sort of patterns are easily available. If you are clever at making rolled hems (it's no trick at all after you know how) finish the edges in that way, for it adds greatly to the appearance of the cape to be so daintily hemmed.

About the most thrilling item brought out this season is the little jacket made either of pique or linen. All the young girls, the debutantes, their sisters, will be wearing some type or other of these linen or pique jackets before long. The model in the picture, to the left, intrigues because of its young looking lines and its smart detail. It has the fashionable round, collarless neck. The fastening is made decorative by nine buttons and "eye" buttonholes down the front. This is the simplest type of buttonhole to make. Crochet the little hat of mercerized cotton.

Speaking of crochet, note the gloves the figure to the left below in the group is wearing. This resourceful young woman converts a pair of ordinary white fabric gloves into a high-style item by working an insert of hand crochet over the back of the hand and adding deep flaring crocheted cuffs (using mercerized crochet cotton). One could secure directions for crocheting at any fancywork department. The rippling collar which she wears is made of pique, the points so dovetailed as to achieve a sprightly flare. The other collar and cuff set is easily made of pique which is quilted with six-cord, number sixty thread.

Latest in Sports Coats

The Schiaparelli boxy sports coat has its rectangular pattern outlined with stitched bands that meet to give shoulder peaks. The string-colored fabric resembles monks-cloth. The jaunty felt hat is the latest in sports hats.

STYLE NOTES

Pink registers as a sports favorite.

Gray flannel is high-style for suits and coats.

Red cotton net makes a winsome dance frock.

The younger set adore the new field flower prints.

Suits and frocks knit of string is the big sports item.

Wide hemlines and wide shoulders feature for evening.

Silk burlap is used for hats, bags, scarfs and jackets.

Cotton net for the bride and her attendants is advocated.

Metal mesh collars, cuffs, yokes and belts are smartly in vogue.

Checks Are Stylish

Checks and double checks are definitely on Dame Fashion's approved list for this season. Helen Vincent, film actress, is shown wearing a modish brown-and-white checked ensemble with brown blouse and new three-quarter-length coat.

Lusitania's Cargo

The Lusitania, sunk by a German submarine, carried 5,400 cases of ammunition, consisting entirely of cartridges for small arms. These were carried by permission of the United States Department of Commerce and could not, according to the report of the collector of the port of New York, be called explosives under the terms of the statutes. She carried no troops, guns, loaded shells or high explosives. The cargo consisted of copper articles, brass and furs and was valued at $750,000.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

HEARTY SANDWICHES

WHEN there are bits of leftover ham too small to serve, put them through the food grinder together with a small onion, half a green pepper and one hard-cooked egg. Mix with salad dressing and use as filling for sandwiches, toasted, if liked.

Ham and Tomato Sandwich.

Take one cupful of chopped ham, one teaspoonful of minced parsley, a pinch of mace, a few drops of lemon juice, one-half cupful of butter, a bit of garlic or onion. Rub the bowl with the garlic and mix all the ingredients together and spread on rounds of bread between which place a slice of ripe tomato.

Deviled Ham, Cucumber Sandwich.

Take a small can of deviled ham, mix with mayonnaise to moisten or use french dressing. Cover one slice of bread with cucumber and the other with the ham. Press together and cut into triangles.

Another Sandwich.

Work into four ounces of fresh butter two teaspoonfuls of curry powder, half a teaspoonful of lemon juice and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt; blend to a smooth paste, adding a few drops of onion juice. Let stand where it will keep soft. Butter slices of bread, lay on a thin slice of ham, then a thin slice of chicken. Put on a slice of buttered bread and press together. Cut any desired shape.

Chopped Roast Beef Sandwich.

Use the small waste pieces left from a roast; to one cupful add a little chopped onion, salt, pepper and enough fresh horseradish to moisten. Spread on generous slices of whole wheat bread.

Roast Beef Sandwich.

Dip thin slices of roast beef into heavy french dressing to which finely chopped onion has been added. Place on thinly sliced buttered bread of wheat or rye and garnish with a slice of sour pickle.

Chili With Roast Beef Sandwich.

Chop roast beef or broiled steak and mix with chili sauce to make a spreading mixture. Add such seasonings as needed and spread on rye bread buttered.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

CASH AND THE BRAINS OF THE COUNTRY

NOT long ago two men in Pittsburgh insured their brains for six million dollars. And some one remarked that with brain insurance becoming more and more common, the real wealth of the country could soon be estimated by consulting certain tables of the insurance companies.

But would the real wealth of the country's brains ever be so estimated?

The people who insure their brains would be those who are cashing in on their brains. For to insure something you have to be able to pay premiums.

And it is a question of particular interest to women, to what extent the brains of the country have cash returns to prove their existence.

Among women, certainly, the percentage would be very small. For every woman who is free to produce concrete results, in cash or even what is termed achievement, for the amount of gray matter with which nature has endowed her, thousands must or choose to live contingent lives in caring for the brains and bodies and present and future of their husbands and children.

The world does not and never will know what the brains of these women are worth. That doesn't matter, however; usually those close to them know. And if credit is not given publicly, dividends nevertheless accrue in a specie more important to the warp and woof of the country's life than payment of gold.

Youthful Endurance

Few youngsters undergo what those of China who assist in the tea harvest experience. Lads eleven and twelve years of age will carry on foot a tea cargo of eighty pounds strapped to their backs a distance of 400 miles to market and will have returned home in twenty days. An adult's load is 350 pounds.

DOLLAR CHASERS

One would imagine that the depression should cause a rise in the spiritual values inasmuch as things worth while stand out like the gold when the dross of affectation, bombast, and braggadoccio is ladled away by adversity.

For example, one would expect to have found in 1933 a tremendous crowd at the Memorial Water Services last Sunday in honor of our soldiers and sailors buried at sea. True, there were three or four hundred there, for the most part those "regulars" who can be depended upon each year to attend. But let us pause for a moment and ask: "Whose veterans were these who gave their lives, anyway? Were they just the representatives of a small minority or did they come from, and protect, the whole of the people? Practically everybody in Richmond SHOULD have been at the water services last Sunday. Why were they not there?

Perhaps this story which happened to the writer a few years back may tell something in this regard. Having returned from a military training camp, where I had spent my vacation, one of our richest Richmond citizens, with a rather supercilious sneer asked, "What's the idea, anyway, Harry?" as if one were some kind of a loon to go through with two week's military training, instead of playing golf, or going to shows, or dressing up like a clothes-horse. So surprised and taken aback that I did not answer then, if it means anything towards a better appreciation of sentimental values, which are to some people more important than dirty dollars, I give my answer now: "Scum! You didn't go to war in 1917. You sat back on the sidelines and hypocritically said "you were sorry you couldn't go, too old, etc. Yes, you sat back and accumulated your 'dough,' and now laugh behind your back at us poor saps who went out and tried to keep your precious home and money-bags safe. Bah! I'd rather be a sap than to be such a craven, so hollow of sentiment and unappreciative of the true values of patriotism and humanity."

Vote "YES" on No. 4

.... At the Special Election, June 27th, 1933

Relieve Schools of Unjust Tax Burden

The Assembly unanimously and the Senate with only two dissenting votes favored placing Amendment No. 4 in the Special Election. California is the only state in the union which taxes non-profit private schools. Private non-profit schools in California educate over 100,000 pupils per year saving more than $12,500,000.00 annually. Why pile taxes on schools that are relieving us of such an enormous burden? Justice, Fair Play, and Sound Economy Urge the Adoption of this Amendment.

OBSERVATIONS

innocently in possession of that deadly weapon and without intent to harm, or that she didn't know it was loaded, or that she did not expect her husband to scuffle with her and thereby shoot himself. During this pitiful recital the jurors and defense council and district attorney and trial judge and the audience are literally swimming in tears. In the meantime the jurors have from time to time taken a furtive look at that shapely limb—and even the austere judge has not disdained to take an occasional peek.

When the matter is finally submitted the jury promptly brings in a verdict of not guilty; whereupon the defendant kisses her counsel, kisses the jurors, kisses the district attorney, and kisses the judge, and everybody is happy —that is, everybody except perhaps the dead man.

Such is the parlous state in which husbands find themselves at this time. Fear rides us like the Old Man of the Sea. We are beginning to assume the slinking furtive look of a fugitive from justice and

"Like one who on a lonesome road,
Doth walk in fear and dread
And having once turned around
Walks on, nor turns no more his head,
For well he knows an armed wife
Doth close behind him tread."

With great diffidence I wish to submit the following suggestions for your consideration:

1. A Law should be enacted prohibiting husbands from scuffling with their wives who are innocently armed with a gun.

2. That, since other wild game is protected by law, we submit that there should at least be a closed season for husbands wherein they might walk and live in peace and safety.

3. That the rules regulating the selection of juries in these cases be so changed that it will be possible to select a jury with an intelligence above the inmates of a mad house or a baboon—not an educated one—but one in his native habitat.

4. That the judge and jurors sitting in these cases be required to wear dark glasses—very dark.

Let me say in conclusion that if you desire to preserve husbands, the time is now, otherwise it might be well to at once plant one in the Smithsonian Institute for the wonder of future generations.

Respectfully submitted,
LEE D. WINDREM.

Anglims to Visit Washington

Assemblyman and Mrs. Clifford C. Anglim left Monday evening on a trip to Washington in the interests of the water conservation project. They will be gone about three weeks and on their return will visit the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago. Mrs. Anglim is a teacher at our West Side Washington School.

Miss Catharine Garvin, of 68 Idaho Street, and Minnie Knight spent the week-end on the Russian River. Miss Garvin is employed at the Assessor's office in Martinez, and Miss Knight is one of the Mechanic's Bank force.

Onchiota Group of Camp Fire Girls, held a swimming party, last Saturday at Keller's Beach and reported a fine time. Vienna Bono, acting as the "Volga Boatman" rowed the girls around the Cove in a rowboat, while others of the crew, paddled themselves around in a borrowed "Kyak." Those present were: Miss Gene Bussey, the guardian of the Group, Miss Margaret Atalich of Miss Snodgrass' group, and the members of Onchiota, Ila Baker, Lupe Avila, Gloria Smith, Wadyne Bussey, Mary Harlow, Vienna Bono, Pauline Speirsch, Ruth Dingle, Winifred Wichersheim, and little Miss Florence Atalich.

The selection of meats for the home table presents, for many, the problem of obtaining meats of dependable quality. Beef, has, perhaps, proven to be the most popular of meats, and almost everyone looks forward, with pleasure, towards a good tender steak, or a savory juicy roast for dinner. Who wants tough beef even at a price? There is always that element of uncertainty as to whether the steak or roast will be up to expectations, particularly when guests are expected for dinner.

AMERICAN HEROINES

By LOUISE M. COMSTOCK

Rachel Jackson

WHEN Andrew Jackson took office as seventh President of the United States, he wore on his arm a band of black crepe. It was the symbol that in spirit at least his beloved wife Rachel, who died between his election and inauguration, martyred, many believe, by his political enemies, accompanied him into his new position of honor.

For Rachel was "Old Hickory's" one great love. When Jackson was but a callow young lawyer come out from North Carolina to establish law and order in the wilderness settlement of Nashville, he roomed at the home of Rachel's mother, the Widow Donelson. Rachel was then a dark-eyed, vivacious young woman, wife of Lewis Robards, whom she had met during a visit in Kentucky. Robards, it seems, was seldom home, but chose to be insanely jealous of his wife when he was there. Finally Robards loudly announced his intention of getting a divorce and set off for Virginia, which still controlled such matters in Tennessee territory, to arrange for it. News that his request had been granted filtered back to Nashville, and in the summer of 1791, believing herself free, Rachel married Andrew Jackson.

Three years later Robards actually did secure the divorce, on the ugly grounds of adultery, but though the couple was straightway remarried and their friends were quite willing to forget the matter Jackson's political enemies were quick to seize upon it and use it. As a result Jackson fought at least one duel of melodramatic aspect.

In 1828, when her husband was making his second attempt for the Presidency, Rachel was sixty, and old as women of the frontier are old at sixty. Once again the old scandal was revived, circulated throughout the country. Back in the Hermitage, busy tending the plantation while the general was away, entertaining his friends, among them the famous Sam Houston and General Lafayette, Rachel was kept ignorant of her unwelcome part in the campaign. After the election, however, waiting in the back room of a hotel in Nashville where she had been buying clothes to wear when she accompanied her husband to Washington, Rachel overheard people laughing and talking out front. They were talking about her! She returned to the Hermitage a broken, sick woman, and when Andrew Jackson went up to Washington the next March, he went alone!

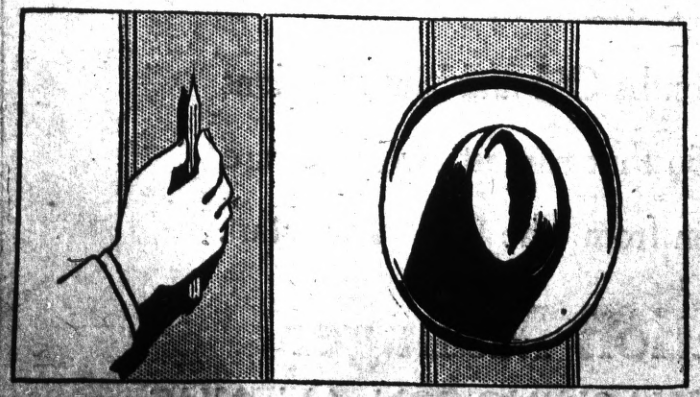
Voltages Necessary to Electrocute Criminals

Electrocution of criminals in various states often raises the question of how much electricity is required to snuff out life. According to one authority, it is impossible to say what voltages are safe, for so much depends upon the conditions existing at time of contact. One man was killed near Prague by coming into contact with a wire charged with a pressure of 95 volts, yet electricians have touched wires carrying current of such high pressures as 5,000 volts without experiencing any ill effects. Criminals are electrocuted in this country by making contact with a high voltage, 1,800 to 2,000, for three or four seconds, reduced to 500 volts until nearly a minute has elapsed, raised to high voltage for a second or two, again reduced to a low voltage until one minute elapses, when it is again raised to a high voltage for a few seconds and the contact broken. A second, or even a third, brief contact is sometimes made later, but there seems little doubt that circulation and respiration cease with the first contact. The general deduction has been drawn from experiments in electrocution work at Sing Sing that no human body can withstand an A. C. current of 1,500 volts, and 300-volt current has produced death, while for the continuous current it may be necessary to use 3,000 volts to produce death.

TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED by Will J. Lindhorst

HOW TO HANG HAT ON WALL WITHOUT NAIL OR HOOK



Take a wood pencil, octagonal shape, and rub it up and down against a painted wood surface, pressing hard at the same time. The heat caused by the friction will make the pencil stick and it will be possible to hang a lightweight hat on the pencil's point. As the pencil may leave marks on the paint, it is best to do this trick on an old surface.

CHIC LINEN SUIT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Those who know fashions are enthusiastic over the idea of linen as a medium for the new jacket suits. The new tweed weave linens are as soft as fine woolen and the beauty of them is that they crush little, if at all. Smart Parisiennes have started the vogue of the dark blouse with the natural colored linen suit, brown or navy organdie being especially sponsored for these blouses. The young woman in the picture has chosen to wear a navy and white striped blouse with a soft-tied navy scarf with her attractive noncrushable tweed linen suit.

Lanterns Des Morts

Or "Lanterns of the Dead," as they are called, sounds quite mysterious. About half way on the road from Angers to Poitiers, in France, there is the old town of Fontevault, famous for an ancient abbey where English kings have wished they could be buried and for a fine example of those "lanterns." The purpose of these tall stone funerary lanterns, built like inland lighthouses, was not known until a few years ago, when it was referred to in the writings of Peter, the Venerable, a Twelfth century abbot of Cluny, that they were lit in homage to the dead Christians. Most of them date from the Eleventh century.

Lake Tchad Has No Outlet

Lake Tchad is located in Central Africa. It covers an area, varying according to rainfall, from 6,000 to 30,000 or 40,000 square miles. It has no regular outlet and the water is fresh and largely overgrown with reeds and other plants.

BEDTIME STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

A REAL APPETITE

PETER RABBIT was provoked. He certainly was. Wasn't it enough to provoke anyone? There he had hunted in vain for Short-Tail in order to make a call, and then Short-Tail had suddenly appeared only to disappear quite as suddenly.

"That fellow doesn't know what common politeness is," grumbled Peter as he vainly stared this way and that.

"Oh, yes, he does," replied a familiar sharp, squeaky voice, and Short-Tail the Shrew popped out from under some leaves. "I'm not impolite, but just busy. We hunters have to work for what we get to fill our stomachs."

"Are you a hunter?" exclaimed Peter, his eyes popping right out with astonishment.

"Certainly! Of course! What did you suppose I was?" replied Short-Tail testily.

"I didn't think much about it," confessed Peter, "but I never in the world would have supposed you were a hunter. What do you hunt?"

"Anything that walks, crawls or flies in the worm or insect line," replied Short-Tail, promptly, as he popped out from under a piece of bark with a fat beetle, which he proceeded to gobble as if he were half starved.

"Oh," said Peter, "I thought you meant that you hunted real folks, the same way Shadow the Weasel and Reddy Fox and all the rest of the hunters do."

"I do once in a while," replied Short-Tail, as the last of the beetle vanished. "If any young mice happen along you'll see whether or not I am a real hunter. They don't have to be young, either. I've killed more than one mouse bigger than I am. I'm ready for a fight with anybody my own size any time. But looking for bugs is just as much hunting as it is for Hooty the Owl to try to catch me. If you don't believe it, just you try to catch some of those big beetles."

"No, thank you," replied Peter, very promptly. "I'm quite willing to take your word for it and to leave them for you and Jimmy Skunk. I should think that one big beetle like the one you have just eaten would last you all day."

"Last me all day!" cried Short-Tail. "Why, that wasn't a bite. It would take a dozen like that to make me a meal and I have to have several meals a day. It is a bad day when I don't eat twice my own weight in food."

He disappeared before Peter could reply. "Twice his own weight in food in a day," muttered Peter. "He says he eats twice his own weight in a day. I thought I was some eater, but I guess I'm not."

"That's nothing. Sometimes I eat three times my own weight when I'm lucky," squeaked Short-Tail, appearing in front of Peter as abruptly as he had disappeared. This time he had a snail.

"Are you going to eat that?" asked Peter.

"Not now," replied Short-Tail, "I'd like to, but I guess I'd better put it away for next winter. Excuse me, please."

Short-Tail vanished with the snail.

"My goodness, what an appetite!" exclaimed Peter, as he waited.

Egyptians and Chinese Made Jig-Saw Puzzles

The oldest mechanical puzzles of which there is any record are those of the ancient Egyptians and Chinese, both similar to the jig-saw puzzle. The Chinese puzzle is known as the tangram and consists of a square of wood or other material cut into five triangles, of different sizes, a small square and a lozenge, which can be placed to form more than 300 different figures. This puzzle is sometimes made of ivory, carved with the delicate figures for which Chinese craftsmen are renowned, and is inclosed in a carved box. Out of these ancient arts has grown the jig-saw puzzle, which has gone through numerous stages by way of colored maps, and similar studies, all of which have been popular in a modified form for many years. The jig-saw puzzle was originated several years ago by an eastern toy maker. The original puzzle consisted of colored pictures pasted on laminated bass or fir wood, sawed out by hand. Later the die-cut type puzzle, stamped out at a high rate of speed, appeared and contributed to the popularity of the diversion.

played on the banjo and violin. Miss Ross Calfee, premier vocalist of Richmond, also delighted with songs. Mrs. Mary Moyle gave an amusing divertisement by calling on the telephone various of the old timers as only she could properly deliver. The vocal numbers by Mrs. Daisy Jenkins and the readings by Mrs. Paul Dunlap were delightful, as was the one-act play, "A Little Cuckoo," acted by Nina Gozzano, Ivy Banner, Marion Honsinger, Ruth Fenix and Alma Yeater.

Assemblyman Anglim acquitted himself nobly in the clear-cut speech which he delivered, and District Attorney James F. Hoey, a native Contra Costan, and one steeped in the traditions of our beloved state made an inspiring talk about old times. One of the most eloquent addresses was by our good Sheriff Veale, who raised his eyes to the Lord in the skies and gave public thanks for favors in political affairs, and conveyed the idea that the Lord would continue to hold him in his keeping in future campaigns. Other able speakers who were introduced by Captain Neville included Supervisor James N. Long, Captain H. P. Lauritzen (who piloted the first Santa Fe Ferry across the bay), Councilmen-elect, Sam S. Ripley and Frank E. Tiller; Dr. C. R. Blake, city health commissioner; Judge C. A. O'Dell; R. E. Slattery; G. A. Follett; and the Rev. Harry Pressfield. Hundreds of other prominent citizens of Point Richmond and in fact from all this part of the country were present.

The Ladies Aid Society served the dinner, graciously and efficiently. Mrs. J. O. Weston, was general chairman and on the dinner committee were numbered Mrs. John Jones, chairman, and Mesdames Cloe Childs, John Pierce, E. J. Dingle, Thomas Finley, Harry Pressfield, B. W. Brothers, I. D. Owens, Tsar Calfee, C. E. Adams, J. O. Redman and T. T. Cramer.

Local Nine City Champs!

The final playoff for the City Championship of the Grammar School League, ended Monday evening with the boys of the Washington Grammar School on the large end of a 13 to 0 score, in their game with the Stege Grammar School. Rudolph Anellini, distinguished himself with a home-run, in the 4th inning. We predict a brilliant future for these youngsters, and hope to see them playing on the Chicago Cubs about 1944. Here's luck, kids!

First Methodist

Mr. E. J. Campbell, student minister of the Bethany Church, Richmond, will be the preacher at the Sunday morning service, during the absence of the pastor, Rev. Harry Pressfield. We ask that he be granted a large audience.

The official board will meet on Monday, June 11th. This will be the last meeting of the year and will be the evening before the pastor leaves for Conference which this year will be held at the College of the Pacific, Stockton.

Progress Want Ads Bring Results

When Fire Chief Cooper addressed the open meeting of the West Side Progressive Association last month he mentioned the gratifying fact that Point Richmond had not had a fire in over eight months.

We are afraid the Chief should have had his fingers crossed because we did have a fire last Sunday. A spark on the roof of the Hotel Columbo caused all the excitement, but the local fire boys under the able direction of Captain R. A. Paasch did their duty with vengeance and the fire was snuffed out before it got a chance.
